(International News Service)
SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 20.—An inquest into the death of Ruth Alexander, famous girl aviator who crashed at the start of projected trans-continental flight, was to be held today. Following the inquest her body will be taken to her parents at Irving, Kansas.

Aviation experts and friends of the ambitious girl flier are to testify regarding both the possibility of a suicide motive and flying conditions which prevailed Thursday when her plane crashed into a hillside in a dense fog.

Authorities still consider the possibility that her apparently bigamous marriage to Ensign Robert A. Elliott, Naval Reserve flier, might have been a factor in her death.

Parents notes to Elliott and her parents were explained by friends as the result of a premonition felt by the girl that death was likely to end her flight.

PA NEW OBSERVES

When the 18 maples in front of the Volant Presbyterian church turn color it will be a lovely sight.

Have you ever seen Volant high school? It is one fine school and the Volant people should appreciate having such a modern, up-to-date building.

A lonesome-looking black cat sat on the porch of the old deserted one-room school house at the corner of the East Brook-Lakewood road Friday afternoon.

Frank McWilliams of Volant told Pa New the other day that the covered bridge in the village was built in 1870 by Sam Anderson. That makes the old fashioned bridge about 60 years old.

Young Pa New was awakened this morning at about ten minutes after one o'clock by a queer sound in time to see a dirigible fly by. It reminded Pa New of the occasion when the Graf Zeppelin flew over New Castle.

The crowd at the football game last night was well taken care of. There was little confusion and little trouble. After the game was over the hundreds of automobiles were driven off with not much traffic congestion.

Say, where was the score board at the game last night? Everyone missed it. As it was necessary to keep track of the score in each individual head, Pa New would much rather not take the time to think out scores at football games, especially when the New Castle team makes so many touchdowns!

Work is progressing on the new Epworth M. E. church at the corner of Butler avenue and East Washington street. For several weeks the construction work was delayed because of the weather.

Goodyear Blimp Speeds Over Centre Of City At Early Morning Hour

Sailing speedily through the night air, a Goodyear Vigilant blimp passed over New Castle shortly after one o'clock this morning. So fast was the blimp traveling that it disappeared into the Western heavens in a very few minutes.

Many local people heard the steady whir of the engines and upon looking in the sky they saw the airship sail over the central part of the city, headed west. Many of the local people who saw it believed it to be the Los Angeles, but the Los Angeles is at its hanger in Lakehurst. It was flying so very low that it appeared much larger than a Goodyear blimp. It came from an easterly direction.

From end to end the ship was lighted, there being lights shining from about seven places. The steady noise of the engines was not anywhere near as loud as the noise made by the Graf Zeppelin motors when it flew over New Castle some time ago.

The Goodyear blimp was traveling over the Western Pennsylvania district.

(International News Service)
BETTS FIELD, HOMESTEAD, Pa., Sept. 20.—Her silvery sides glinting in the early morning sunlight, the Goodyear blimp, "Vigilant" hovered over this field for a short time today and then headed westward to Akron, her home port.

The Vigilant was completing a brief flight over the tri-state district. The blimp passed over New Castle early today and flew down the Beaver Valley to the Ohio river where it branched off and followed the Ohio into the Pittsburgh district.

Sighting of the huge gas bag over several cities in Western Pennsylvania before dawn led to reports that the U. S. Navy dirigible "Los Angeles" was making a test flight. A check up with the naval air depot at Lakehurst, N. J. however, proved these reports erroneous.

Despondent Man Loses His Mind, Kills Wife-Self

Two Neighbors Are Wounded
As Ohio Farmer Goes Insane From Despondency

THREE CHILDREN
BECOME ORPHANS

(International News Service)
WOOSTER, Ohio, Sept. 20.—Because Earl Young, 40, Wayne county farmer, suddenly went insane yesterday while despondent over ill health which kept him from working, two persons were dead today and two others were reported recovering from shot-gun wounds, police said.

The dead were Young and his wife, Isa, 45. Ed Uhl, 60 and Carl McCluggage, 20, neighbors of the dead couple, were the injured.

Police said Young suddenly appeared on Uhl's farm yesterday and fired point blank at him with a shotgun. Young then turned on McCluggage and fired one charge into his body.

Arriving at his home closely followed by local authorities, Young was said to have shot his wife through the head and then, as he saw the officers approaching, turned the gun on himself. He died a few minutes later.

Young's three children, aged 6, 8 and 11, were in school when the tragedy occurred.

Former New Castle Man Is Killed

William Llewellyn, 62, Is Accident Victim At Weirton, West Virginia

Special To The News

WEIRTON, W. Va., Sept. 20.—William Llewellyn, 62, former employee of the Carnegie Steel Company, New Castle, Pa., personal friend of James J. Davis, U. S. secretary of labor and boyhood friend of J. He had complained of being ill and was on his way home at the time of the accident. His body was cut in two.

Mr. Llewellyn was born in Wales and came to Gary, Indiana, 23 years ago, where he worked for eight years, later going to New Castle where he was employed at the Carnegie plant.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 20.—We used to have a rule that our government wouldn't recognize any new government that had come into power by force and revolution.

Then somebody that had accidentally read our history happened to ask, "Well, how did our government come in power?"

So now we recognize 'em, no matter who they shot to get in. Yesterday we took in Argentina, Bolivia, and Peru.

All you have to promise is, that you will buy something from us, even if it's only guns for the next revolution.

If Russia will just share, and buy some tractors, we will recognize them. There is no such thing as a thief any more, as long as he can pay his way.

Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's
Lieutenant In Berlin
Among Those Injured

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—Eleven members of the National Socialist (Fascist) party were taken into custody today following minor street clashes in which a number of injuries were reported.

Joseph Goebbels, Berlin lieutenant of Adolf Hitler, Fascist leader who has earned the sobriquet of "Mussolini of Germany," was reported to have been among those injured.

The clashes took place as a result of demonstrations which followed refusal by the Prussian ministry of the interior to lift a ban on a scheduled procession of 6,000 Fascists in Potsdam on September 28.

Using the wide influence of their tremendous gains in last Sunday's election, the Fascists openly demanded rescinding of this ban, together with demands for dissolution of the Berlin city council and the Prussian diet.

Goebbels was reported to have been struck on the head by a policeman's club.

Rumors Denied

Conservative elements in the German press joined with the government today in flatly denying rumors of a contemplated Fascist "putsch," which already have caused a terrific slump in security prices on the Berlin bourse, as well as occasioning considerable alarm among the populace.

The rumors are ascribed to stock exchange maneuvering and partly to political agitation. In answer to these charges, the Communist newspapers, which first published accounts of the alleged putsch plans, declared they have a "duty to warn against dangers even if immediate danger of a putsch is non-existent."

The Fascist newspaper Voelkische Beobachter, ascribing the rumors to unscrupulous market jugglers, discusses the alleged tactics with biting invective, headlining a front page article "United front of the stock exchanges against awakening Germany."

In an interview in Munich, Hitler himself added his denial of a contemplated putsch to those which have gone before.

"We do not need to make a putsch to gain control of the government," the Fascist leader declared.

Some 8,000 Football Fans Enthusias Over First Gridiron Clash As Teams Trot Around Under The "Chandeliers"

There must be something in red hair. It must be that the fiery pigmentation in the hair follicles of one of the carrot thatches, has something to do with leadership and inspiration and all that sort of thing. Brian Boru probably had red hair, or should have had anyway. So has "Red" McAuley who was christened Regis. One of them was Irish and the other is, and in addition is captain of the New Castle High School football team.

The red hair may be the reason of the symbol of the thing that wins football games and whatever it is Captain McAuley had it in bulk lot chunks Friday evening when the New Castle High School football team presented its first gridiron opera on Taggart Field, defeating Coraopolis 27-6.

Good Supporting Cast

Using the operatic simile for a moment you will agree that Mac was easily the prima donna the ballerina and the orchestra director. Just like Caruso ran the scales a few years back, Red ran through the opposing linemen but prima donna that he was he had an able supporting cast.

There was Lesky and Fabian and Thomas all of whom had the pleasantness of sitting on the ball back of the enemy's posts. Carrying the operatic motif along a bit farther one might call this the "Quartet from Bridenbaugh." Up in the line were "heavies" of the opera, Hoose and Askounes and Jamison, plowing holes in the line through which McAuley twisted and dodged and snakehipped his elusive way time and again.

For the entire cast the game was the premier of the season. All the hopes and aspirations of the past months, the toil and the boasts and the promises of the high school days were trotted out under the chandeliers Friday evening and after one hour of gridding, the fans went home with the idea that we have a team this year that will do well.

RAID ON BREWERY
RESULTS IN SLAYING

(International News Service)
ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 20.—Philadelphia gunmen were blamed today for the "putting on the spot" of John G. Finiello, a Philadelphia prohibition agent. Finiello was shot and killed by gunmen late yesterday after the killers surprised and disarmed the agent and five companions in a raid on the Rising Sun brewery here.

Search was made for the gunmen, believed to number a dozen or more. They escaped, although ten minutes after the shooting scores of police were on their trail.

Four Are Arrested.

Three men arrested in the brewery were held as material witnesses to the killing and a fourth man was arrested today. The latter is Leo Weasner of Philadelphia. He was to be questioned. The three others held are John Howatt, Newark; John Fox, Elizabeth, and August Gobel, Maplewood, N. J. All were working in the brewery when the agents raided it, authorities claimed.

The raid was unheralded. Prohibition agents here said today. It was ordered by John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for the Philadelphia district and local dry authorities and police were not advised.

While Finiello and his assistants were raiding the brewery a group of determined young men entered and immediately took charge. They had made the five agents prisoners when

Local Interest In Cup Lipton Tries To Get

It's probable that few people in this city realize that there is a local and personal interest in the recent races in which the Enterprise retained the International Yacht Race Trophy by defeating the Shamrock V, entry of Sir Thomas Lipton.

This is due to the fact that in connection with the recent International Yacht races at Newport, it is interesting to know that Commodore John C. Stevens and his brother Edwin A. Stevens who were the principal owners of and sailed on the famous Yacht America, which brought the cup to this country, the great uncle and grandfather of Basil M. Stevens of Castle Point, Hoboken, New Jersey, who married Miss Helen C. Ward, daughter of Mrs. Edward H. Ward of this city.

Quoting from The Spur of June 1930, the following is found of interest: "For many years, this trophy, the tall silver ewer, now on display in Tiffany's window on Fifth avenue, New York City, graced the drawing room of the genial commodore's home on Washington Square, New York City. Castle Point, Hoboken was the then country estate of the Stevens family."

Mr. and Mrs. Basil M. Stevens are frequent visitors in this city and have many friends here, who will be interested to know that through Mr. Stevens this community has a personal interest in the famous yacht races that have been held at intervals for many years to try and take back to England the trophy won by the forbears of Mr. Stevens.

Small Paymaster's Safe Is Discovered

Evidently Had Been Thrown Into Seventh Ward Yard During Night

Police authorities have as yet been unable to fathom the significance of the finding of a paymaster's small safe, encased in a leather carrying case, which C. L. Lutton, 221 East Clayton street, found abandoned in the back yard of his home early Friday morning.

As yet there has been inquiry been broadcast from any point that would indicate that it might have been a safe taken in a paymaster robbery job at some point either near or far away from here.

The safe, which is strongly built and quite heavy and is at present securely locked with a Yale combination lock and would have to be broken in similar heavy implement, may yield some information as to where it came from, when opened. It would be necessary to secure a lock expert to unlock it, which will be done when other possible means of determining the ownership have been exhausted by the police.

In the leather case under the safe were found possibly a dozen large clasp manila envelopes, which were used possibly in putting the pay of men employed by the paymaster's company.

Owing to the fact that Mr. Lutton found it as he was about to go to work, he did not have time to make an investigation at the time and did not call the police until last night, when he turned it over to Officers Suber and Lockard and Detective Logan.

BEBE DANIELS

"Lawful Larceny", Radio Pictures' all-talking drama showing at the Penn theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is a faithful adaptation of the original New York stage success, and is just as entertaining.

Bebe Daniels, the star, scores in an entirely new role, that of a wife who sets out to recover her husband from another woman. Her performance is intensely human and convincing.

She is supported by a cast of former stage favorites, including Olive Tell, Lowell Sherman, Purnell Pratt and Kenneth Thomson.

Tonight the Penn will show for the last time Richard Barthelmess, in "The Dawn Patrol".

Crime Never Pays

SOME GET BUSINESS

AN analysis of published reports of corporation earnings for the first six months of 1930 throw some interesting light on business conditions and the manner in which various lines of industry are weathering the depression.

Five groups showed increased profits over the corresponding period of 1929 in spite of the business retrenchment. These groups with their percentages of increase in parentheses are: Amusement companies (68.39), drugs (7.38), restaurant chains (4.65), printers and publishers (2.64), and beverages and confections (1.94).

All six companies studied in the amusement field did better the first six months this year than in 1929. Of the six restaurant chains studied three reported larger profits and three lower profits. Nine drug companies were studied, six showing profit reductions and three gains.

The inference from this survey is that in times of depression and unemployment people have more time for the theater, to "doctor up" and "paint up" at the drug store, to read, to eat and to drink.

But of far more significance is the fact, disclosed by the analysis, that in the 28 groups studied all but one had at least one member able to show a better profit in 1930 than in 1929. What else does that prove if it is not that the business is there for those who go after it? Where one company can do it, whose fault is it that others fail?

NEW YORK'S BILLION-DOLLAR BUDGET

Several decades ago when the expenditures of the federal government just passed the billion-dollar mark, Thomas B. Reed, the statesman from Maine, answered the criticisms of the opponents of the administration by saying with his inimitable drawl, "Well, this is a billion-dollar country." Everybody will cheerfully admit that now. But what are we to say of a billion-dollar city? William H. Allen, director of the Institute for Public Service, puts the spendings of New York City for 1930 at $961,200,000 and adds: "Next year's budget total will take the city's spending so far beyond a billion dollars that municipal officials will begin to call anything under $20,000,000 too small to bother with."

It is quite likely that a proportion of the money expended in New York is waste and extravagance, to put it mildly; but it is equally true that we are now witnessing an annual output for legitimate purposes in the chief city of the country of sums of money that would once have been sufficient to pay the expenses of the whole nation. It must not be forgotten that New York City now has a population almost twice as great as that of the United States when George Washington was elected president. When hundreds of millions have to be invested for subways and other big permanent improvements, the tax question becomes a serious matter for the patient taxpayer.

What is true of New York is equally true of the other large cities of the United States. They have reached the point where there is an imperative demand for a more business-like administration of these great municipalities. They cannot blink the fact that money is being wasted. And waste is a form of crime, because it means high taxes, which are felt, either directly or indirectly, by everybody. It is a matter that cannot be dodged forever. Some day it will have to be taken up seriously by the people. When it is they are likely to get results. But relief will come without effort and leadership.

KING OF SPORTS

Baseball is still the great American sport. Any doubt of that was removed when the placing of world series tickets on sale the other day revealed a demand for them in excess of that of last year before the securities crash. But why?

No game yet developed is so thrilling or so charged with the elements of passion and suspense as major league ball. Football and polo are hard games, in which players win distinction only by extraordinary stamina, skill and fortitude. But baseball is more a matter of hair-trigger technique and the perfect combination of team-work and individual play.

But baseball doesn't owe its place in the sun to itself alone. An army of enthusiastic sports editors and other writing men, some thousands of miles of telegraph wires, unlimited space on the front pages and sports sections of newspapers and scoreboards everywhere have exalted, glorified and popularized the game.

Other sports may win new following and sand-lot baseball may vanish from the picture of amateur athletics, but big league baseball will remain the major sport of the nation as long as the sporting pages treat it as such.

DOES A LOUD SUIT DEFLECT SOUND?

The Bureau of Standards at Washington has been conducting experiments in acoustics and finds that the clothing of an audience absorbs considerable sound. Careful measurements to test the length of time required for the "decay of sound" in a theatre shows that the heavier raiment of winter takes up more than the lighter apparel of summer.

The discovery suggests an interesting commentary on the bearing the sartorial evolution may have on the decline of oratory. The roar of forensics in the past was more or less necessary to overcome the heavy textile static. Now that we are less burdensomely clad, the natural speaking voice of the drawing room affords sufficient volume to be heard distinctly all over the auditorium.

Most of the ills of this world are imaginary.

Often they are mere reflections with no more substance than the crimson you see on the windows facing a brilliant sunset.

They flame and glow and dart fire, but when you get near you can see for yourself that there was nothing to it but reflected light.

Doesn't that teach you a lesson? How many of the things that are most dreaded ever come to pass? Not very many.

Roy Ammel, a red-haired young man from North Dakota, who did some air fighting in the war, and enjoyed it, has invested his $40,000, including his last dollar, in a fast Lockheed Explorer plane, and plans to fly by himself to Paris.

He calls the trip that he plans "doing a Lindbergh", and hopes to cover the distance, 3,610 miles, in about 25 hours, beating Lindbergh by nearly eight hours.

If he does that, Lindbergh will be well pleased. The engine decides the speed, and Lindbergh, like everybody else, knows that the trip will be made, eventually, in 10 hours and less.

President Hoover did a good, wise day's work when, through Secretary Stimson, he announced our recognition of the three new South American governments in the Argentine, Peru and Bolivia.

Those new governments exist, and evidently express the will of their peoples, or at least the determination of the most intelligent and forceful among them.

Each people's government is its own business.

It is our business to recognize the accomplished fact, not to moralize and hesitate, as we do foolishly with Russia.

Russia, by the way, which wishes and needs recognition, could get it by paying a small amount of money, less than 40 millions, to some that foolishly bought the czar's and Keren-sky's bonds.

The payment could be disguised so that it wouldn't involve paying vastly larger sums owed nations that HAVE already recognized Russia.

Primo Carnera, Italian giant from Venice, concludes his present tour of the United States, winding up with his 23rd victim, a heavyweight called Jack Gross. He has met and knocked out 23 American heavyweights, and decides to "call it a day."

Intelligence possessed by the most important American heavyweights has made them keep away from the big Italian.

The general belief is that Carnera, when he hits, hits too hard, as the British boxer said to John L. Sullivan after he went over the ropes at the Crib club in Boston, long ago.

September 17 marked the 143rd anniversary of the signing of the Constitution. Earnest dries say the vets are trying "to destroy the Constitution."

The anti-dry says that cutting a cancer out of a man's stomach isn't destroying, it's saving him, and the 18th amendment, cause of our crime wave, needs cutting out.

There will be interesting wet-dry fights in all elections for years to come.

A few months ago, to talk of changing the prohibition law seemed foolish. It is still foolish to talk of repealing the 18th amendment. There will always be 17 states to vote against repeal, enough to prevent it.

But there is no knowing what other changes may be made, although we probably shall have the worst, which would be to keep the law, ignoring it, letting bootleggers do their worst, putting the public on a permanent bootleg beverage basis.

Crime becomes ever more efficiently organized.

A gang of automobile thieves, alleged by the government to be managed by a distinguished criminal, formerly of Chicago, takes orders through regular salesmen for any car you want.

They explain that some cars were ordered for shipment to Russia, and the shipment refused.

You give your order for a fine car at half price. They steal the car and deliver it. It costs $50 as a bribe to arrange for license plate changes.

Chicago's police, in the fight against racketeers, raided 10 labor union offices. Papers seized show the determination of racketeer gangs to "muscle" into reputable labor groups, and control them.

Fortunately, union labor as a whole is free, thus far, from any racketeering taint.

But union racketeering does exist, on a gigantic and dangerous scale. The welfare of the unions demands that it be stamped out.

"Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you."

James, "a servant of God," wrote that in the beginning of his fifth chapter, rebuking the rich that treated workers unjustly.

The weeping and howling words can be borrowed now in connection with the news published by the Veterans' Bureau. Within a year 156,000, not now on any pension list, will be drawing money from the government for "disability not connected with military service."

Detroit police have discovered and destroyed the biggest bootleg still ever found. It cost the owners, according to the police, at least $1,000,000. It seems to have been a "good investment" while it lasted, producing every month a million dollars worth of whiskey. The bootleggers for raw materials not more than $8,000.

There is a small stretch of street at the end of North Mercer street between the paving and Euclid avenue on which the million dollar George Washington high school stands. This is a grape that hasn't had its facial massage, that they plant Brussels sprouts to grow carpets.

Roosevelt Stand On Dry Law Considered As Political Bid

Some Dries Believe He Has Eliminated Himself As Candidate For Presidency, While His Courage Appeals To Those Persons Who Desire Prohibition Showdown

Gov. Franklin Roosevelt of New York is generally believed to have launched the campaign of 1932, by his statement in favor of repeal of the Prohibition Amendment, with an accompanying policy of State control of liquor sales. Uncompromising dries hold that he has eliminated himself as a candidate for President. Some commentators, linking the Roosevelt pronouncement with Mr. Morrow's on the same subject, predict the possibility of a third party in the next national campaign.

"Returns from the primaries" declares the PROVIDENCE JOURNAL (Ind.), "offer additional testimony to the continued onrush of the wet tide in the United States. No intelligent American can close his eyes to these several developments." The ATLANTA CONSTITUTION (Ga.) holds that "sooner or later the people, tired of the tragedy of present enforcement methods, and the futility of the operation of the 18th Amendment, will endorse the Roosevelt plan."

"The Empire State executive," says the MUNCIE STAR (Ind.), "has brought the prohibition question to the fore in a way that will make it a paramount issue in his commonwealth and probably will commit his party nationally in 1932." The CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER (Ind. Dem.) declares that the Governor, "already probably the leading contender for the Democratic nomination, wins new adherents by his declaration in favor of repeal."

The NEW YORK WORLD (Ind.) avers that "his utterance will greatly strengthen the cause of real temperance, betrayed by the present legislation in the house of its alleged friends."

"A return to the States of control over intoxicants is not only good Democratic doctrine but good common sense," in the opinion of the SCRANTON TIMES (Pa. Dem.), while the HELENA MONTANA RECORD-HERALD (Rep.) nominates the similar position: "The Governor takes the view shared by many other sane thinking persons and not necessarily drinkers of intoxicants, that the eighteenth amendment 'has not furthered the cause of a greater temperance in our population.' And he shares with many others the sentiment expressed in a resolution of the American Legion, department of New York, that the law had 'led to corruption and hypocrisy.'"

Criticizing the Governor's position, the LITTLE ROCK ARKANSAS DEMOCRAT (Dem.) asserts that "by his statement, the New York Governor has eliminated himself as the party nominee, and if not that, he has cost the party the support of the Southern States, even if he should happen for the State of South Carolina."

The SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN (Ind.) believes that "the present restatement of his views injures his availability as a compromise candidate able to conciliate both wets and dries down where the cotton grows and out where the West begins." Holding that developments are "sufficient to put Democrats on notice, the CHARGE (Ind. Dem.) says that "the fact that all the signs point to the fact that organized efforts are under way to commit the next convention to the wet plank, with a wet leader, and that this leader is already selected in the New York Governor."

"Governor Roosevelt's advocacy of the dispensary system in place of prohibition as a national policy, which is identical with Governor Tillman's policy for the State of South Carolina 40 years ago," in the judgment of the leadership of the Democratic party, the ASHEVILLE TIMES (Ind. Dem.) asks: "Does Governor Roosevelt look hopefully to 1932 as his year of destiny to try for the Democratic presidential nomination and for election over the Republican standard bearer? That paper adds: 'Many wet Democrats will hope so, all dry Democrats will fear it.'"

"There are other able men in the Democratic party," contends the LYNCHBURG ADVANCE (Dem.) "and simply the fact that Governor

"Should he be a candidate for the presidential nomination," according to the RICHMOND NEWS LEADER (Ind. Dem.), "it will be as a wet, definitely committed to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. That is a fact of no small moment to the Democratic party, which at this time has no other candidate as promising as Roosevelt. But before reconciling themselves to the prospect of another unhappy struggle with the bitterness of 1928 revived as far as partisans can stir it up, Democrats will do well to remember that much water will run under the bridge before the national convention meets."

The NEW YORK EVENING POST (Ind.) concludes as to the effect of the declaration by the Governor: "For us to try to pick flaws in the time, manner and subject matter of Governor Roosevelt's declaration for repeal of the Prohibition amendment would seem to smack of partisanship. He has done the right thing. He has done it without evasion. He has done it, too, before he had to and without deference to the advice of those who told him to wait until the Republicans had spoken on the question and then to 'so them one better.' In other words, he has fairly won a real leadership on this most troublesome of issues. Franklin Roosevelt has lived up to the courageous traditions of his name. We hope that a similar courage will be found at the Republican State Convention."

YES, HE RECOVERED
"Have you given him anything or done anything to relieve him?" asked the young doctor who had fared in to the backwoods to see a patient in the dead of a stormy night.

"Well, no, doc,—that is to say, nothing to speak of," said the wife of the patient. "I had him soak his feet in almost blin' water with a lot of mustard in it, an' a clapped a red-hot plaster on his back an' another on his chest, an' I've put a couple of blisters I had in the house under his arms, an' a bar of cracked ice to the back of his neck, an' had him drink a pint of ginger tea with a dash o' rum in it, jes as hot as he could swallow it, an' I followed that with some yard bitters one o' the neighbors sent over, an' I had him take five or six jolts out of a box I got one day of a man that came along with medicine to sell, and he's had three or four spoons of Quaker's pain killer an' one of these sedative powders, but didn't feel like as if I ort to do much of anything, or try to do much for him till you come an' see that you think ailed him. Then I reckoned we could go at him and really give him somethin' an' do somethin' for him."

And it is related that the patient recovered.

Mayor Appoints Committee To Pass On Veterans

A committee of three men has been selected by Mayor William H. Gillespie, whose duty it will be to make investigations and recommendations for the purpose of issuing a license to peddle from house to house to a World War veteran who has seen service and become incapacitated by his service to this country. The committee is composed of Harry M. Long, chairman; Ivor Davis and Orville Potter.

An act of assembly of the year 1925 provides that the mayor may provide a committee of three members to determine the justice of the claims of war veterans for their right to peddle in the city of New Castle. However, there must be cases where justice and humanity would require that the city grant some special privilege to world war veterans.

The objects taken included precious stones and valuable mosaics which had been in possession of the Vatican for centuries. The depredations took place in the museum of the palace, a place visited by thousands of tourists every year.

Preliminary investigation indicated the thieves broke into the palace through a window on the ground floor, making their way to the museum without the knowledge of guards stationed to watch the valuables.

Hemphill Asserts State Payroll Is Keeping Taxes Up

(International News Service)
MIFFLINTOWN, Pa., Sept. 20.—"Too many fellows at Harrisburg" is one reason Pennsylvania taxpayers are carrying an excessive burden, John M. Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal party candidate for governor, declared in a campaign address here last night.

Local officials, particularly school and township officers, are unable to carry on their office programs without going to the state capital, Hemphill declared, although the reason for their election is that they are thought more capable of handling local affairs than persons at a central point.

The Democratic leader launched another attack on the plan of his opponent, Gifford Pinchot, to take over 20,000 miles of township roads for paving and maintenance under state administration. He declared Pinchot was promising to take over the roads without increasing taxes, and asserted that the "eloquent promise will not be kept, because the legislature will not permit him to do it."

Hemphill promised a sane, economical and businesslike administration of state affairs if elected.

TOWN DOCTOR
"DOCTOR OF TOWNS"
SAYS

GOOD BUSINESS NOT "CIRCUS STUFF" MAKES COMMUNITIES

As most towns have been in existence for a long long time, it is no more than natural that they have "barnacles on their ships." I do not suppose that the time will ever come when there will be a community devoid of those who shirk community responsibilities—people who sit back and do nothing but take all they can get.

Every endeavor has sideline advisers. There are always those who are willing to tell how a thing should be done, but never are known to do it themselves. There are always a few punks in the bleachers ready to yell "take him out!" at the first tough break. You have to expect that.

I never saw a community that didn't have a few natural born oppositionists, but they are often an asset rather than a liability. Personally I would rather have a few real out-and-out, hardheaded, brutally frank "show me" people who have a reputation for lacking community spirit, than a crowd of slaves to the god Boost, who get all hopped up over an undigested scheme that is supposed to do "wonders and doll babies" overnight, and then forget about it in less than a week.

Many people call a man who doesn't go down in his pocket to support every wild cat boosting scheme that comes along, a knocker. I don't. I call him a good business man, and I'd rather have this man back me on any endeavor than the fellow who "comes across" just to keep from being called a piker at the next Chamber of Commerce meeting.

Give me the man every time who says "no, I won't subscribe, for I do not believe that your plan is right or will accomplish the intended purpose." Such a man is thinking about the community, and when sold will stay sold; while the other fellow doesn't think—he does it to be a good fellow, all of which is fine and dandy, but it don't BUILD communities.

There are too many good fellows in the average town and not enough fellows who think things out along the lines of "good business", and refuse to "come in" until they are "sold". I have never been able to figure out why a group of good business men will go ahead and do things civilly, in ways and along lines that they would not countenance in the conduct of their own business, unless it is because of this thing of "being a good fellow."

If any man or any one organization had one tenth of the money that has been thrown away by civic organizations they could almost rebuild and remake all the towns in this good old U. S. A. which goes to show that it isn't that people are not willing to do something to build their communities, but that their efforts are misdirected—they shoot wild, don't aim, and often actually do not know what they are shooting at. If a business were handled in the same way there would be another job for the bankruptcy courts. Maybe it's too bad that towns who are mismanaged and misrun can not be closed up the same as a business.

Now do not misunderstand; there is no unjust criticism here. It is just a plain fact. And while dealing in facts it can do no further harm to state another truth. The average bunch of men—these good fellows—who band themselves together for the purpose of "making the community of which they are a part a bigger, better, more interesting, more attractive place in which to live, work, play and make money", and otherwise improve and build-up their community, always want one or two things: to start at the finish, or to do something that carries with it a lot of hurrah and excitement. They want a show and a lot of fireworks, a celebration and a great amount of whatever they are after, all at once. It is a difficult matter to interest the average civic organization in anything else, but its "good business" and not circus stuff that builds.

Junior High Library
Circulation Larger

Add 300 Volumes To Washington Book Room This Year; Many Donated

Three hundred new volumes useful in all departments of school work including a number of fiction books besides, were placed in circulation at the George Washington junior high school when the term opened two weeks ago. Miss Helen Westlake is the librarian in charge.

What might serve as an indication that pupils are now taking a deeper interest in books was the circulation figures for the first day, September 8. Two hundred books were passed out to the pupils that day, Miss Westlake said.

Contributors to the library have been many so far with Mrs. James Ward Reis, 318 East street, presenting an 8-volume set of Ellis' History of Our Country while Mrs. James Smith, 301 Highland avenue, presented a group of 29 books, mostly fiction. Student contributors included Sally Smith, Sarah Broida and Mary Schmidt, while Ralph Lingerman, teacher of the school, has placed in the books of the science department in charge of the library for distribution this year. Heretofore, these books were secured from Mr. Lingerman himself.

Another East Side Home Has Night Blooming Cereus

Mrs. James Grove, 740 East Washington street, is the possessor of a Night Blooming Cereus, a member of the cactus family, which last night bloomed for the first time since it has been in her possession, a matter of ten years, and the first time in its existence, as Mrs. Grove has had the plant since, it was very small.

The plant that Mrs. Grove owns is known as the Star of Bethlehem and the wonderful flower that blossomed forth last night for a few hours, gave evidence of why it is called by that name.

The flower that opened last night for a brief period of time, never again to reopen, had formed in its center a perfect representation of a cradle, with a bundle like growth in the interior of the cradle that made one think of the Christ child born in Bethlehem many hundreds of years ago and right in front of the cradle was a large star shaped growth.

It was about 6:30 o'clock last night, when the beautiful flower started to unfold and it was in full bloom by 9 o'clock. It had closed up at midnight.

Many people from all parts of the city, who had learned the fact that the plant was in bloom, visited the Grove home last night and witnessed the phenomenon. This type of Cereus is supposed to bloom every seven years. Mrs. Grove has had it for ten years and this is the first time that it ever bloomed.

United Lutherans Will Convene In Milwaukee In October

Questions Of Utmost Importance To The Churches Will Be Taken Up At This Time

The United Lutherans in New Castle are looking forward with great interest to the seventh biennial convention of their church which will be held in Milwaukee, Wis., during the eight days beginning October 7. Many questions of outstanding importance to the church members will be discussed by the delegates during the legislative sessions of the convention.

One question raised by the Executive Board and in the report of the president, the Rev. Dr. Frederick H. Kruebel of New York, is as to whether the national organization or the district synod shall have final authority in the matter of location and establishment of theological seminaries. The particular case on which a decision is asked is that of Hartwick Seminary established 133 years ago near Cooperstown, N. Y., and owned and operated by the United Lutheran synod of New York, which has moved from its upstate location to New York City, where in a parish house in Brooklyn, it opened recently for its 134th year. The Lutheran convention will be asked to decide whether such a change of location is permissible without the institution or the synod first seeking authority from the United Lutheran Church itself. The situation is further complicated by a proposal which has been under consideration for some years, to merge four Lutheran seminaries in Pennsylvania and New York, forming one larger institution to serve the entire East.

Among numerous other items affecting the future welfare of congregations and church members throughout the country will be the discussion of the entire subject of the remarriage by the church of divorced persons. A bone of contention at three former conventions, it is believed that this question stands a fair chance at the coming meeting of final decision, at least so far as the United Lutherans are concerned. The position of the committee on Moral and Social Welfare, which is asking for a decision, is that the church should stand on the strictly biblical ground of refusing marriage with ecclesiastical sanction except of the innocent party where divorce was granted for adultery or desertion.

The United Lutheran Church in America, the largest general body of Lutherans in this country, numbers nearly 4,000 churches in the United States and Canada, with a baptized membership of 1,400,000, of which approximately 1936 baptized members are located in New Castle, according to Rev. A. M. Stump, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Every Motorist
Made 6,220 Miles
During Past Year
At Least That Was Average
Mileage—Thirteen Billion
Gallons Of Gas Used
WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—An average of 6,220 miles was traveled last year by each motorist in the United States, according to figures just announced by the American Motorists Association.
There was one automobile fatality for each 4,986,415 miles traveled.
The estimates, regarded by the Association as being comparatively accurate, are explained by J. Barton Weeks, president of the A. M. A., as follows:
"The total gasoline consumption by automobiles last year was 13,188,070-640 gallons. Computing an average of 12.5 miles to the gallon, the figures show the total mileage rolled up by the motorists of the country last year to be slightly less than 165 billion miles, or an average of 6,220 miles for each registered motor vehicle."
"The total mileage, based on this computation, is 164,550,880,000 miles.
Divide this total by 26,500, the number killed by automobiles last year, and you have the average mileage per fatality, showing there was one death for each 4,986,415 miles traveled."
The 1929 gasoline consumption by automobiles was approximately 20 per cent greater than the 1928 consumption. The per capita consumption, during the past year was 497 gallons per motor vehicle.

The sermon topics for the New Year's service will be: New Year's Eve, Monday, "If It Were Not for the Angel"; Tuesday morning, "Heavenly Judgment"; Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning Rabbi Zakuto will explain the meaning of the Shofar sounds, their origin and their use; some of the important prayers and the piyyutim, which are hymns and prayers composed by the rabbis and poets of the middle ages and which have been incorporated into the liturgical service of the Festivals and Holy days on account of the religious and festive sentiments contained therein.

New Columbia Bridge Ready

HARRISBURG, Sept. 20.—A new Lincoln highway bridge over the Susquehanna river between Columbia and Wrightsville, erected by the adjoining counties of York and Lancaster at a cost of approximately $3,000,000, is completed and will be open on or about October 1, the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, State unit of the American Automobile Association, announced today. This bridge will take the place of the narrow Pennsylvania Railroad Company span that for years has carried the heavy motor traffic at this important crossing and which, according to S. E. Edwards, president of the Federation, has been one of the worst highway "bottle-necks" in the State.

HOOVER PREPARES TO DEFY CRITICS

Washington views President Hoover's decision to make four speeches in six days as an indication that he accepts the Democratic challenge to prove his administration has not been a failure. The groups he is to address are of such a nature that within that short time he will have appeared before a representative portion of the financial interests, the labor vote, the war veterans and the "Hoovercrats," who made it possible for him to invade the solid south. On October 2 he speaks to the American Bankers' association, Cleveland; on October 6 to the American Federation of Labor, and the American Legion, both in Boston, and on October 7 he will make the address at the sesqui-centennial celebration of the Battle of King's Mountain, near Gastonia, N. C.

CONNIE HAS NO CHOICE FOR WORLD SERIES OPPONENT

TWO OF THE BEST IN THE MAJORS

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Help Pupils To Perceive Moral Value

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
YESTERDAY we parents presumed to express our wishes to you the teacher of our children. Please allow us to wash still more.

We parents want our children to succeed in their studies, to be sure, but most of us put qualities of character above mere school achievement. We can see, however, that the factors which go to make a child successful in his regular lessons, ought also to cultivate in him many valuable moral traits. But there is more.

We want our children to acquire habits of doing right and of often reflecting upon what is right. We know that we often fail to seize opportunities at home to call their attention effectively to moral values.

After all, their notion of right and wrong, and their urge to do what seems right to them comes largely from those with whom they live.

We parents know that you, as a rule, are in high esteem of our children, that they look up to you, putting high value on your judgements and ideals. Hour by hour, right in the classroom, there arise situations in which your book or posture or remark or judgment or decision or mode of action set standards of conduct for our children. The more highly they esteem you the more likely are they to be guided by you whether you are conscious of the fact or not.

In the classroom frequent questions arise in which your attention registers in a highly moral way. Then there are many opportunities for you to call the attention of the children to a moral factor involved. There are times when you ought to say, "That is right," or "That is wrong." Sometimes you will feel the need of explaining why; more often not. You, with more experience than your pupils, can pass on to them in inoffensive ways certain standards and ideals which the group whom you respect have cherished as worthwhile. What an opportunity a great teacher has to help conserve and make attractive to her admiring pupils those ideals which have contributed to home and family happiness.

Some high school teachers, just fresh from the graduate school, eager to have students think liberally, overlook the fact that the adolescent lacks experience and wisdom, lacks ability to see in perspective. The history teacher, for example, takes great delight in playing up some of the human frailties of such national heroes as George Washington. The adolescent, eager to enjoy freedom from restraint of the conventional and to feel himself great and glorious, applauds this teacher who in turn is likely to go to teaching destructively. The pupil loses a sense of proportion, comes to think of such traits as dominant in the historical hero so dissected, loses sight of the major elements in his greatness and contribution to human growth and happiness. Worse still, these immature students may grow cynical (many do) and lose respect for all heroes they once adored, even to consider their parents and other loved ones who tried to cultivate in these children a regard for things worth while, as old fogies. I have a notion that some social science teachers in the high school are doing great moral harm to their students.

But do we want to have our children learn the truth? To be sure; but to learn the truth only as they have experience, balance of mind and emotions to interpret the truth in right proportion. We do not need to hide facts; neither do we need to set on a mountain those which are small in relation to the whole situation.

We build character in children; in all other persons, indeed, as we play up in them and in their heroes those traits which in terms of the history of the race have proved most useful toward human welfare and human happiness.

BABY FEET

Pretty little baby feet.
Pink and plump and oh, so sweet!
Chubby legs and dimpled ankles.
Where are lovelier sights than these?
It is sad to think some day
All their charm must pass away.

Pitter-patter round they go.
Little toes like pearls a-row.
Little heels so smooth and pink
It is curious to think
With the passing of the years
So much beauty disappears.

Time so many changes brings;
Grown up feet are ugly things.
Twisted, gnarled and callous-scarred.
For the road of life is hard.
Older grown those feet will stay
If they never run astray.

But the loss of baby charm
In itself brings little harm.
What if every pretty toe
With the years must ugly grow.
Glorious still those feet will stay
If they never run astray.

Low Blood Pressure Not Serious

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
Not infrequently we find people who are worried because they have low blood pressure.

A friend of mine, a physician, says that when one of these comes to him and says:

"Doctor, what shall I do about my low blood pressure?" He answers: "Get down on your knees and thank God for it."

That, I think, is as sensible a way to consider it as any. It usually means the individual has inherited a very elastic set of arteries and will live to a very advanced age.

Life insurance companies have placed the arbitrary limit of 100 as the lowest point of systolic blood pressure at which they will accept candidates for insurance. They found when they were compiling statistics that people who had lower pressures than that had a very high mortality rate from tuberculosis.

This is the symptomatic kind of low blood pressure. It is symptomatic of tuberculosis. And since it is easy to make a diagnosis of tuberculosis, the plain sensible thing to do, if you have low blood pressure, is to make perfectly certain whether you have tuberculosis or not. This can be done by having a careful physical examination, an X-ray, a sputum examination, and a reading of your temperature every afternoon at 4 o'clock for two weeks.

If, after all these tests, your physician assures you that you have no tuberculosis, you may safely take my friend's advice, get down on your knees and thank God, and throw your care to the wind. You are destined for a long life, although I do not personally envy you that particular fate.

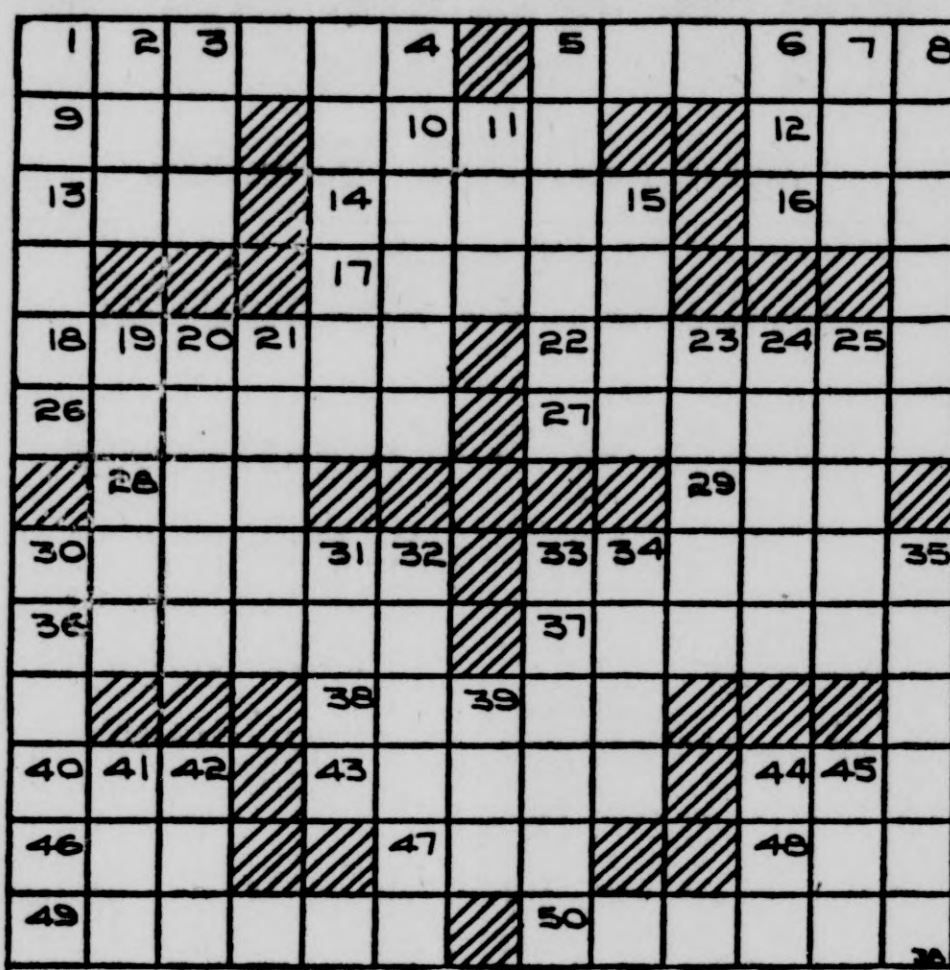

Of course, there are other symptomatic instances of low blood pressure. Any fever usually is accompanied by a low blood pressure. Anemia of any kind will bring it about. Indeed, any state of debilitation will do so. But the causes are usually easy to determine.

A certain bodily build usually goes with low blood pressure. It is variously called, but most appropriately I think, the asthenic type of individual.

They are the greyhounds. Thin, long, attenuated, with eyes of immemorial sadness. I have described them before. They have dropped stomachs, dropped intestines, floating kidneys. Nothing about them seems to stay put. They are natural pessimists. To them this world is a vale of tears. It is a mistake to tell one of them that he has a low blood pressure, because he will worry about it incessantly. The only thing is, if he didn't worry about his low blood pressure, he would worry just as much about something else. But if he does find out he has a low blood pressure, no explanation will comfort him. There is no use reading one of them this article. It will raise neither his spirits nor his arterial tension.

The device by which an automobile is guided solely by means of the spoken word is regarded as a new invention, although it is ante-dated by the back-seat driver.—Hartford Courant.

THE QUICKETS way to get folks to follow a leader into possible danger is to ask for volunteers. Peter found that out by watching Soldier Ant's tactics.

"Who'll go with me to find out who's in the other room?" cried she, and scores of claws went into the air with one motion. "Maybe 'tis a baby's voice we hear. Maybe an enemy has crept into the hill at our heels and is crying out in a baby's voice to deceive us. Remember, sisters, if you follow me you may run into grave danger. Think first before you volunteer. No one who cares for his safety above all things, need follow. However, I am a soldier. I must go where duty calls me."

You can't talk to a crowd like that and not rouse them to bravery. With-out more ado, out the doorway Soldier Ant strode. Close behind her followed a dozen volunteers. As they marched by, Busy whispered to Peter: "Soldier Ant is making a mountain out of a molehill. All she thinks of is danger and a big fight. But I am sure as can be that she and her volunteers will find in that room next to this only a little larva. And if they do, then there's going to be trouble for someone. Who left the larva behind? That's the question somebody will have to answer. Come on, let's see whether I'm right or wrong!" After the others trotted Busy and Peter.

Busy was right. He knew a larva's voice when he heard it. "There's the larva! Look! Three of them!" cried Busy to Peter. Busy pointed and Peter saw three funny little figures that looked like tiny stuffed pillow slips. No sooner had she spied them than Soldier Ant gave a cry of rage and called to Nurse to come and take care of the poor little waifs. And Nurse rushed in and licked the funny little pillow slips all over.

Use Of Milking Machines Shows Steady Increase

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.—The use of milking machines in commercial dairying is increasing, and in order to assist dairymen to keep milking machines in sanitary condition so that the quality of the milk produced will be high, the department of agriculture has just issued a bulletin on the subject. The publication is Farmer's Bulletin, Cleaning Milking Machines, and may be obtained free of charge from the office of information, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The milking machines which have not been treated with heat or chlorine solution is one of the principal sources of bacterial contamination of milk, and if the machine is not washed thoroughly clean and effectively treated with heat or chlorine, the result may be that the milk will contain bacteria in large numbers, says the bulletin.

The publication discusses the necessity for proper cleaning of the milking equipment, the parts of the equipment which require special attention, the best treatment for killing bacteria, the effect of heat on rubber parts, and variations of the heat method. It is illustrated.

Uniontown Jury Acquits Bell Of Murder Charges

Man Held For Alleged Death Of Constable John Dona-hoe Is Given Freedom

FOUR BALLOTS ARE NECESSARY

(International News Service)
UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 20.—Tony Bell today was a free man.
A jury of nine men and three women returned a verdict of acquittal at 9:30 o'clock last night in the murder trial of Bell, former Masontown chief of police, for the slaying of Constable John P. Donahoe.

Four ballots were taken during the five and one half hours that the jury remained out of the box. The votes were reported as 7 to 5, 10 to 2 and 11 to 1 before the acquittal was reached.

Bell received the verdict with the same characteristic smile which has played about his face throughout most of the trial. Despite warnings by Judge Hudson against demonstrations, the packed courtroom voiced approval of the verdict.

Albert Baker of Uniontown was promptly sentenced to serve ten days in jail and pay a fine of $100 for alleged applause.

The former Masontown police chief was charged on circumstantial evidence with Donahoe's murder. The constable's bullet-riddled body was found in his automobile on an isolated highway near High House July 31, 1929. Donahoe was believed to have been "put on the spot" in a racketeer feud.

On Three Weeks.
Beginning September 1 the Bell trial consumed nearly three full weeks. One week was taken in the selection of the jury which was finally accomplished after more than 200 veniremen had been questioned.

Special Prosecutor A. E. Jones called 95 witnesses in building up his case against Bell. The defense rested its case after calling 20 witnesses, including Bell, who made a positive and vehement denial of having anything to do with the murder.

Filled with startling events throughout, the final sensation of the trial came yesterday when Prosecutor Jones told the jury that the commonwealth did not seek a death verdict but a first degree murder conviction.

In charging the jury Judge Hudson warned against discriminating against circumstantial evidence, if convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that Bell was connected with the slaying.

The court advised the jurors not to permit fear, pity or sympathy for any one to influence them in returning a just verdict.

Foster's Weather Forecast

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Autumn begins officially on September 23 at 18 hours and 37 minutes Greenwich Civil time and, on this date, the northern hemisphere will be in the midst of a period of very changeable and severe weather. As severe storm waves crosses continent during week centering on 22, a moderate warm wave is expected to give way to a heavy but general precipitation and high winds in North America; the worst part of this storm wave will be expected to strike western Europe near October 1 and to travel across central and southern Europe with a force at least equal to that expected in North America. Cold wave will probably cause freezing temperatures and killing frosts as far south as southern corn belt near September 25 in North America. During storm period of 22, a tropical storm is expected to form in southeast Atlantic ocean between southeast Caribbean sea and coast of Africa near the equator and to cause very severe weather on central and eastern Atlantic ocean during balance of month. This storm will form farther east than the average tropical storm, but will be expected to become very severe.

Storm wave of moderate force, expected to cross continent during week centering on 30, will carry temperatures to higher levels and cause a period of moderate weather generally over the continent. During this period and October, minor evaporation point will cause greater precipitation in North America to fall in extreme eastern Great Central valleys and an increase in precipitation generally over east half of continent; September 18 to October 31 distribution of precipitation is expected to be more even than it has been during the past several months; no very large area will be left dry during that period.

Forecasts of cropweather features expected during October will appear in next weekly bulletin. Moon phases that will occur during the near future are as follows, given to nearest hour of Greenwich Civil time to your local standard time, count one hour earlier for each fifteen degrees of longitude you are located west from Greenwich: First Quarter September 20 at 15 hours; Full Moon October 7 at 19 hours; Last Quarter 15 at 5 hours; New Moon 21 at 22 hours; First Quarter 29 at 9 hours; Full Moon November 6 at 10 hours.

Four eclipses, two of the sun and two of the moon, were scheduled to occur during 1930; the 1st two occur during October, a partial eclipse of the moon October 7 and a total eclipse of the sun October 21. Neither of these eclipses will be visible from North America as it will be of little interest to this country excepting to scientific investigators. Due to the unusually long time that eclipse of sun will last, "older 21" man scientists will travel to the southern Pacific ocean and attempt to take valuable photographs and observations. There is much to be learned from such scientific expeditions; the principal difficulty now being a lack of instruments that would probably show the nature and movement of force between sun and earth at such times.

whether present world conditions have any prophetic significance. Dr. Neighbour has made a very careful study of this subject in the light of the prophetic scriptures. He will speak of such potent political conditions as the rise of Bolshevism, Fascism and the turmoil in China and India. The question as to whether or not Mussolini is the anti-Christ will be considered. The prevalence of famine, pestilence, and cosmic disturbances, together with the so-called "moral revolt," the breakdown of the home, will be examined. In the evening Dr. Neighbour will give his final message on "A Royal Hand-Out."

May Change Method Of Building 'Walks'

Councilman Treser yesterday suggested to colleagues that, instead of using the "piece-meal system" of building sidewalks the city should inspect walks and let bids for all the sidewalks that should be repaired or built. Treser said the list could be put before council annually in January. Indications are Treser's suggestion will be accepted.

Reeves To Abandon Handling Signals

Councilman Clayton Reeves today stated that in the future he will not exercise jurisdiction over traffic lights.

He said that the lights should come under the authority of Mayor Gillespie. Police Chief Horner and Councilman Treser of the department of streets.

During the term of a former council the lights were put under the jurisdiction of the men who occupied those positions but Reeves continued to take charge of them.

Appoint Woods As Sewer Inspector

Pastor "Not Guilty" Of Criminal Libel

Costs Are Placed Upon Rev. A. M. Turkiewicz In Suit
Brought By Frank Golis

The jury in the case of Rev. A. M. Turkiewicz, on trial before Judge R. L. Hildebrand for criminal libel in connection with an article written for the Polish Weekly Straz, returned a verdict of not guilty, but pay the costs.

In the article published in Straz it was alleged that an article written about Frank Golis, head of a Polish society here, had been malicious.

Rev. Turkiewicz, on the witness stand, denied that he had any ill feeling toward Golis, that would have caused him to write a malicious article. He said that he had written the article on information that had been furnished him.

The jury retired about 4:40 Friday afternoon and arrived at a verdict about 7:30. The verdict was sealed and delivered when court convened this morning.

New Principal At Volant High

A Grove City College graduate, will fill the position of principal of Volant public school, left by the resignation of Robert Luckey, last year's principal, according to the Volant school board.

Classes are well under way at the Volant school, with three teachers in charge — Mrs. H. H. Thompson, John Martin and Alberta Welker. Of the total number of school pupils there are 26 high school students. There are room for more students and the citizens of Volant are of the opinion that the system would be more satisfactory if the school was more or less consolidated.

Colorful Ceremonies Attend Induction Of School Senators

At an impressive chapel service George Washington junior high school's new group of students senators was formally inducted into office, Thursday. Installation ceremonies are held immediately after the election of representatives each year.

A song, "America the Beautiful" was sung as the opening number of the program, and as the students sang the senators marching in two different lines, entered the auditorium. Heading one line was Instructor E. O. Delancy, while J. C. Ward, senate sponsor led the other.

Once the senators were on the platform, devotionals were conducted and the induction ceremony began. Mr. Delancy led the devotionals. Presentation of the student officers to Principal B. K. Thacker by the senate sponsor then followed, and Mr. Thacker in turn presented them to the school, introducing each senator individually.

A colorful part of the program came when Becky Carson, representing the Spirit of Washington, explained to the student group the ideals of the schools toward which they always should strive. She held a burning candle, signifying the lighted ideals.

When the spirit concluded her message, she touched her burning candle against that which Heber Baldwin, the senate president held and each senator then lit the candle which he held. Principal Thacker immediately administered the oath to the senators as a group.

After each officer had been presented, the group filed out of the auditorium while the students and teachers remained in their places, singing the Washington school song.

Officers of the senate include Heber Baldwin, president; Robert Allen, vice president; Jean Haug, secretary, and George Bensinger, treasurer.

NEW YEAR AT TEMPLE ISRAEL

Rosh Hashanah Will Be Observed On Monday And Tuesday

Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, will be observed with solemn and festive services at Temple Israel on Monday evening at 8 o'clock and Tuesday morning at 10:30. Rabbi J. B. Menkes officiating. The subject of the evening service will be: "The Summum Bonum." In the morning Rabbi Menkes will preach on the topic: "An Inherited God." A special program will be rendered by the choir on both occasions.

The Jewish Rosh Hashanah is its purpose and functions very much unlike the secular New Year. Its calendar significance, as the year 5691, is at present almost nil and hardly plays any part in the life of American Jewry. However from the religious and spiritual point of view it has assumed an overshadowing and far-reaching importance. On this day and even more so on the subsequent and more sacred Day of Atonement all the moral and spiritual forces of the Great Jewish Heritage are brought into fullest play. Eternal Verities which condition a true Jewish life are re-emphasized in all their power and glory, the full stream of their benign influence is directed upon the sensitive Jewish soul. Ceremonies and symbols, memories and reflections, prayers and exhortations, are all utilized to set the heart aright, to deepen and strengthen the appreciation of sublime ideals, to bring each soul into a beautiful accord with itself and the Infinite, to establish a spirit of helpful and blissful co-operation and harmony with our fellow men.

HIGHLIGHTS OF HISTORY

By J. Carroll Mansfield

30. Nathanael Greene—Conclusion

IN DECEMBER, 1781, GREENE ATTACKED THE BRITISH POSITIONS AROUND CHARLESTON AND DROVE THE RED COATS BACK INTO THE CITY ITSELF. GREENE'S PERSISTENCE AND INVINCIBLE SPIRIT HAD TRIUMPHED; ALL OF SOUTH CAROLINA, SAVE CHARLESTON, HAD BEEN FREED FROM THE INVADER.

GREENE'S CAMPAIGN FOR THE RECOVERY OF THE SOUTHLAND HAD SUCCEEDED, BUT HIS WORK WAS NOT FINISHED. HIS ARMY LAY GRIMLY BEFORE CHARLESTON, HOLDING THE BRITISH WITHIN THEIR LINES UNTIL THEY FINALLY EVACUATED THE CITY ON DECEMBER 14, 1782.

(Copyright, 1930, by J. Carroll Mansfield)

WITH THE ENDING OF THE WAR, GREENE BECAME ONE OF THE POPULAR IDOLS OF THE DAY, BUT HE EAGERLY SOUGHT THE TRANQUILITY OF THE BEAUTIFUL PLANTATION PRESENTED HIM BY THE GRATEFUL CITIZENS OF GEORGIA.

GENERAL GREENE WAS TO ENJOY HIS NEW HOME ONLY A FEW YEARS. IN 1786 HE DIED OF SUNSTROKE. HE WAS THEN ONLY FORTY-FOUR, BUT HE HAD LIVED TO SEE THE BLESSINGS OF INDEPENDENCE DESCEND UPON THE NATION HE HAD SERVED SO DEVOTEDLY.

BEGINNING NEXT WEEK — DANIEL BOONE.

Bobby Jones To Seek Golf Title, Marines On Hand

United States Marines May Be Called Upon To Keep Crowd Away From Jones

BIG GALLERY IS HINDERING BOBBY

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—The United States marines, who it seems are always saving somebody from something, are about to protect Mr. Bobby Jones, Jr., the golfer person, from the great though pestiferous American public. Mr. Jones on Monday will begin to play as much golf as possible in connection with his attempt to win the National Amateur championship, thus obligating all known accounts of golfers who have won championships here and there but never in both places.

Naturally, Mr. Jones needs plenty of protection and, when the championship proper starts at Merion two days hence, he will get all that the United States marines can give him meaning that if he gets any more he will be positively aloof.

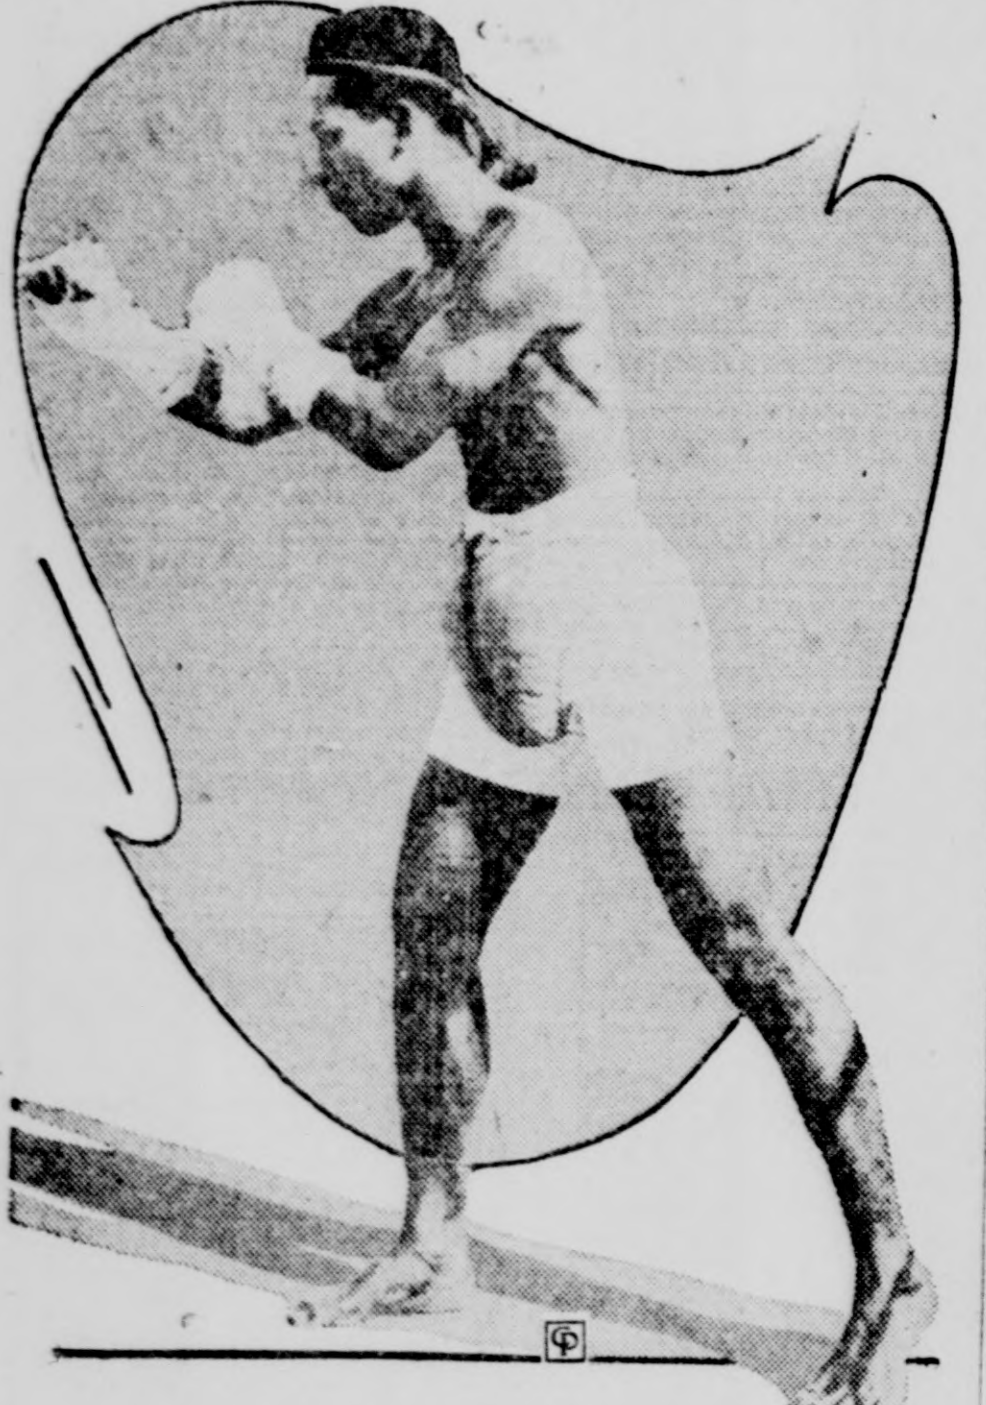

To be explicit, the League Island Navy Yard, where the local marines are quartered, admitted today that there was a detail ready to accompany Mr. Jones as he made his daily tour of the links next week in quest of his fourth major championship. It wasn't necessary to admit that such a guard was necessary. The laird of the links, always a focal point with galleries, simply has been over run with local addicts to date which is par for the over-run sweepstakes, and so according to the local navy yard, it has been deemed necessary to add armed troops to the inevitable convey of marshals, who usually can shout louder and say less than the average amplifier.

FROM TEE TO GREEN

By ROY GROVE
Central Press Golf Writer

GOLF, being a high-powered game of nerve and muscle, is pressed on every shot when a woman tries to bang her way through to the pin. It is a natural tendency and can easily be overcome if the woman player will only relax throughout her game.

Her first application to this style of play is to become acquainted with the force of the club head. She should let the end of the club do the work all the way from the address to hitting through.

This alone would solve nine-tenths of her trouble and take at least nine or 10 strokes off her game.

After getting the "feel" of the club head, the weight of the club and the whip through the ball, there are only two important factors of rigidity that a woman golfer must look for.

First she should see that the left arm (B) is stiff, very stiff, and watch that the rest of the body does not tighten. Next in importance is the necessity of keeping a rigid right leg (E) coming back on the swing. The stiff left arm means a grooved swing and the rigid right leg means a pivot for the swing.

Let the rest of the body play through (as in C) in a loose and easy manner, making for a smooth and well-timed stroke.

In keeping with these two points, do not tighten the right arm (A) or the left knee (D) when putting these points into effect.
